Addison Township To Raise $6,531.49 During Coming Year

Board purchases new tractor with snow removal equipment for $5,034—Bills are audited at full board session Thursday and Friday.

The Addison Town Board has purchased an Allis-Chalmers caterpillar tractor at a cost of $5,034. It was felt by the members of the Board that the upkeep of the old and much smaller tractor would be inadvisable and it was the thought of the Board members that it would be more economical to purchase a new tractor, with newer equipment and more powerful. The new tractor, in addition to being suitable for road work can be used for snow plowing on the town roads as it has a plow attached. Much of the town plowing has been done by the county plow heretofore.

The plow is to be paid for in four installments. The first will be paid February 1, 1940 and a trade-in allowance of $734 was allowed on the old tractor. Payments will be made as follows: March 1, 1940, $1,000; March 1, 1941, $1,100; third payment, March 1, 1942, and fourth payment, $1,000 in March 1943.

The board met last Thursday and Friday for its annual audit of bills and the discussion of other important business. Supervisor Henry Sherwood presided and Justices present were Will B. Leete, Fred C. Wilcox, Lattimer W. Brewster and George Tompkins.

The sum of $2,000 was appropriated for relief work during the coming year. The sum of $3,050 will be raised by taxes during the year to pay the balance on a note in the First National Bank of Addison.

Bills audited and ordered paid from the general fund are: George Tompkins, fee, $24; George H. Weatherby, fee, town board, $30; Henry L. Sherwood, town board fee, $30; F. C. Wilcox, town board fee, $27; Will B. Leete, town board fee, $27; and Lattimer Brewster, town board fee, $27; George H. Weatherby, election compensation, $75; George H. Weatherby, road fee, $25; F. C. Wilcox, justice fee, $5; Mrs. Florence C. Newman, election compensation, $25; Henry L. Sherwood, supervisor compensation and fee, $206.39; R. E. Oldfield, real estate compensation, $2.86; Leo Hogan, constable fees, $7.20; Lattimer Brewster, justice fees, $29.45.

Many dresses and shoes as well as other articles of clothing and knick knacks were sold by the women. Mrs. Guy Mayer is general chairman for the affair.

Post Office Being Improved for Service

People going into the post office Monday morning were surprised at the sudden change made in the appearance of the interior of the building.

Uncle Sam, through his Postmaster James A. Farley has signed a five year lease with Vedder A. Manley for the rent of the present building, the last lease having expired.

The renovation included enlarging the receiving window, moving the smaller stamp window to the rear of the outside office, a few changes for convenience at the inner office and repainting and decorating.

Elmer C. Bovee is general chairman for the Red Cross Roll Call which will begin in Addison during the coming week. Working with him will be Mrs. Clare Chart, who has worked on the drive in past years. They will announce their committee members soon.

The money raised will go towards local charity, part will be sent to national headquarters for work there and part will go to Corning which acts as the parent organization for Addison and provides the local chapter with many articles and services throughout the year.

Memberships are one dollar, although any sum will be welcomed by the solicitors. Forty percent of the dollar remains in Addison for local expenditures during the year. This includes food, clothing and other articles. Fifty cents of each dollar goes to national headquarters for world, national and any emergency where large sums are required. The remaining 10 cents is used in Corning for services to the local chapter.

During the past year this consisted of loans of beds, chairs and donations of clothing, furniture and nursing equipment.

All people of the community are asked to cooperate and show a Red Cross in the window at this time of the year when funds are necessary for the relief of suffering and distress.

Van Zile House Guttered by Fire Wednesday

An early morning fire from an overheated chimney completely gutted the Mrs. Jessie Smith Van Zile house, Steuben Street near the B & O tracks, Wednesday morning.

Firemen were called to this house a month ago to fight a chimney fire. The fire started on the second floor of the house and was well under way before firemen could reach the scene.

George Moore, truckman, saw the blaze from his home across the tracks and sent in the alarm and also went over and removed things from the home. Neighbors quickly gathered and brought many articles of furniture and keepsakes from the house before the fire became too intense for further trips.

Firemen from both companies worked hard to try to save the house. They were hampered in the early stages of the fire by lack of water pressure as streams when first turned on would not go over the roof of the house.

Most of the damage to the building, a two story, wood frame dwelling was done on the east side of the second floor. Upper rooms were completely gutted and lower rooms were damaged by smoke, water and flame. The damage is estimated at $500 on the building and an unknown sum on the furnishings and personal effects.

Firemen remained at the scene for a long time after the fire as tongues of flame came through the roof from time to time. Extreme cold weather also hindered the firemen in their work.

Mrs. Clare Chart took coffee to the firemen during the fire to enable them to carry on in the freezing temperature.

Men and Missions Program Brings Group From Three Churches

Supper held in Methodist Church draws members from Presbyterian and Baptist denominations—Baptist missionary gives talk—Sound pictures from Presbyterian Board shown.

Men from three Protestant denominations in Addison joined for a supper and program of Men and Missions Tuesday evening. The supper was served by the ladies of the Methodist church, while the program was given in the auditorium of the Methodist Church.

A short program was given at the table, the Rev. Nicholas Van Cossaboon presiding. The Rev. John V. Axtell introduced the Rev. Paul E. Rickenbaugh, pastor of Franklin Street Presbyterian Church. Mr. Rickenbaugh introduced Thomas Henderson of Elmira who had given his time and the use of a sound motion picture projector to present a talking film on missions. The Rev. Mondula Johns introduced Dr. William Axling, a Baptist missionary from Japan who spoke a few words before the group adjourned to the auditorium. The public was invited to the evening's program.

Following the singing of a hymn the group saw a talking picture on the "untouchables" of India from the Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions. Mr. Johns then again introduced Dr. Axling who kindly consented to stop at Addison for an address on his way from Lincoln, Nebraska to Syracuse.

Dr. Axling stated his belief that the next great historical movement would not be in Europe, but rather would be seen in the Orient. A missionary to Japan for 39 years, he told of seeing the population of the Nippon Empire nearly double in that time until today there are 72 million Japanese living in an area smaller than the state of California. Due to the mountainous terrain of the islands only about 25 percent of the land can be cultivated. This density of population has created a great problem for the nation to find ways of feeding the increasing millions. The speaker stated he did not condone the Japanese attack upon China, but he realized the tremendous problem the Japanese leaders were facing to solve and the economic burden it placed on the nation.

The speaker concluded with a note of sadness because of the fact that in spite of the great present need for missionary workers in the Orient, American gifts to missions have been steadily dwindling. And this has made it necessary to curtail the number of workers in the field at a time when the need is greatest.

WHEELLOCK CONVICTED

A jury of men and women has brought in a verdict of "guilty" against the self-confessed murderer Wheellock who brutally attacked and killed the little Penn Yan girl early this fall.
The murderer has been condemned to die in the electric chair, and unless the verdict is reversed by a higher court justice will be carried out.

This case has been one of the most inhuman murders ever committed in the county. Wheellock's lawyers tried to prove he was insane and thus not responsible for his actions, but the jury decided the young man knew what he was about when he slew the little girl and thus should be forever removed from society. The verdict was a popular one, judging by the comments of people in the street. Feeling had run high against the killer and soon after he was captured some hot-heads in Yates County were looking for a leader to attempt to take the law into their own hands. Fortunately cooler heads prevailed and the law took its course, the trial coming quickly after the apprehension of the accused.

District Attorney King and other Steuben County and state officials are to be congratulated upon their diligence in so rapidly prosecuting the case. The fact that the law has been quick and effective in dealing with Wheellock is insurance that in the future citizens will be willing to let justice proceed by orderly means in this vicinity.

THE CITY OF FLINT

The story of the capture and consequent release of the American steamer City of Flint, will likely live as one of the amazing chapters of this hang-fire European War, even though hostilities blow open with all the horrible reality of present day weapons. No tale of Jules Verne could surpass the breath-taking rapidity with which the fortunes of this ship changed back and forth.

When the Flint started on its voyage to Scotland Britain was supposed to control the surface of the sea. Hence the captain and crew of the vessel must have been almost struck dumb when the battleship Deutschland appeared as if out of nowhere to capture them. Their surprise must have been heightened by the fact the battleship placed a prize crew on board instead of sinking the vessel, nor was the mystery lessened for the Americans when the Flint was steered clear around to the northern Russian port.

Once in Nurmansk their fate changed as regularly as the rising and setting of the sun. First they were to be interned—then they were not and when the prize crew floated them out of port again to sail through the British blockade the sensation must have been anything except calm and inspiring. Would they strike a mine? Would they be hit by a British shell from some warship halting them? Might they be blown up by the Germans in an ostensible attempt to fix the blame on the British and arouse American feeling? Would they get through to a German port? These must have been only a few of the question marks which raced through the minds of the hapless crew. Yet they could hardly have guessed how they would be finally liberated.

Steered into the Norway port of Bergen events suddenly shifted the other way. Norwegian authorities ruled it was a violation of international law to bring a prize into port. The Nazi prize crew changed status from captors to prisoners, and the skipper of the Flint suddenly found himself again master of his ship.

No wonder the owners and crew of the Flint were ready to unload the cargo as quickly as possible to take their ship out on the high seas under ballast. After being in the fire and out of the fire for two or three weeks an American port will doubtless look good to everyone on that boat.
All their countrymen will hope these sailors get through the ocean danger zones without further adventure.

NOT SO WASTEFUL

We Americans have often been called a wasteful and improvident people. It's true we often spend money recklessly—but, at the same time, when it comes to erecting financial safeguards against the future, we have no competitors.

This country accounts for but 7 per cent of the world's population. And yet we own 70 per cent of all the world's life insurance.

So the fact is we don't scatter all our wherewithal to the winds at every opportunity. We spend more for luxuries than the people of any other country because we earn and have more.

And we also spend more for the necessities—of which adequate financial protection is one of the most vital.

UNCLE SAM'S POCKETS

We have all heard of "carrying coals to Newcastle", yet we Americans have a different way of doing it which might have given a laugh to the folks whose methods of doing that stunt were responsible for the coining of the phrase.

It seems that our venerable Uncle Sam insures himself against loss, paying the cost of the insurance out of one pocket and into another. Doubtless this is all right, and perhaps the government should see to it that every precaution be taken to protect ourselves against ourselves, yet the ways and means are as inspiring as the old saw, how old is Ann?

We have billions in gold near the Atlantic seaboard. The Treasury decides that five billions of the metal should be moved to a place beside other billions in the big federal hole out in Tennessee. So the Treasury makes arrangements to ship this gold to our hole in the ground by registered mail. The play is, Morganthau to Farley to Tennessee to Morganthau. Of course the Post Office Department must be paid when you or I send a registered letter, and that seems to go for Mr. Morganthau, even though he be Secretary of the Treasury. Hence Mr. Morganthau pays Mr.
Farley, Postmaster General about a million dollars to insure safe transit of the gold from Philadelphia, et al, to the federal depository in Tennessee.

We have not the slightest doubt every ounce of that gold will arrive safely in Tennessee under heavy federal guard—Farley won't lose a grain of it and the Treasury will get value received for the insurance on the huge sum. Yet if we could stretch our imagination to believe this shipment of gold could be hi-jacked, then how could the Post Office Department pay Mr. Morganthau? Uncle Sam would have to reach deep into that right hand pocket the post office uses to pay into the left hand pocket the treasury uses.

HITLER'S ESCAPE

The long expected attempt upon the life of Adolph Hitler came in an unusual manner last week, but the plan mis-fired and the German dictator escaped unscathed. Possibly there have been other attempts made to kill Hitler which have been concealed. That we do not know, for information of such nature would be heavily shrouded in secrecy in a country without a free press. However, the bombing of last week was known by too many people to be concealed.

It is quite in keeping with the Nazi theory of power that the blame was almost equally split in the beginning between the Jews and Britain. Dictatorships always have to have some bogeyman to use as a whipping-boy in order to keep their followers keyed to feverish enthusiasm—lest they settle down to a sense of complacency fatal to dictatorships. Fellows like Hitler know by some seventh sense that power is only possible for them so long as the masses believe there exists a greater danger than the usurpation of liberty enforced upon them. That is one of the big problems of a dictator—unquestionably it is the answer to the question of why Hitler was willing to risk involvement in a general war this fall.

Hardly anyone outside of Germany would believe that Britain could possibly have anything to do with the bombing. Indeed, it is more plausible to think Hitler's own henchmen might have planned the incident, and the narrow escape, to stir up the wrath of the masses who seem to be somewhat lethargic towards going on with the mass murder called twentieth century war. Another solution might be the chance a disgruntled Nazi storm trooper was filled with jealousy and made the attempt from his position on the inner circle.

Whatever the truth is we shall likely be kept in ignorance, at least until Hitler is driven from power. The immediate question in the minds of the allied leaders is whether the Nazis will have whipped themselves into enough fury over the bombings to start war in all its horrible potentialities on the western front.

LOCK THE VAULT AGAINST POLITICS

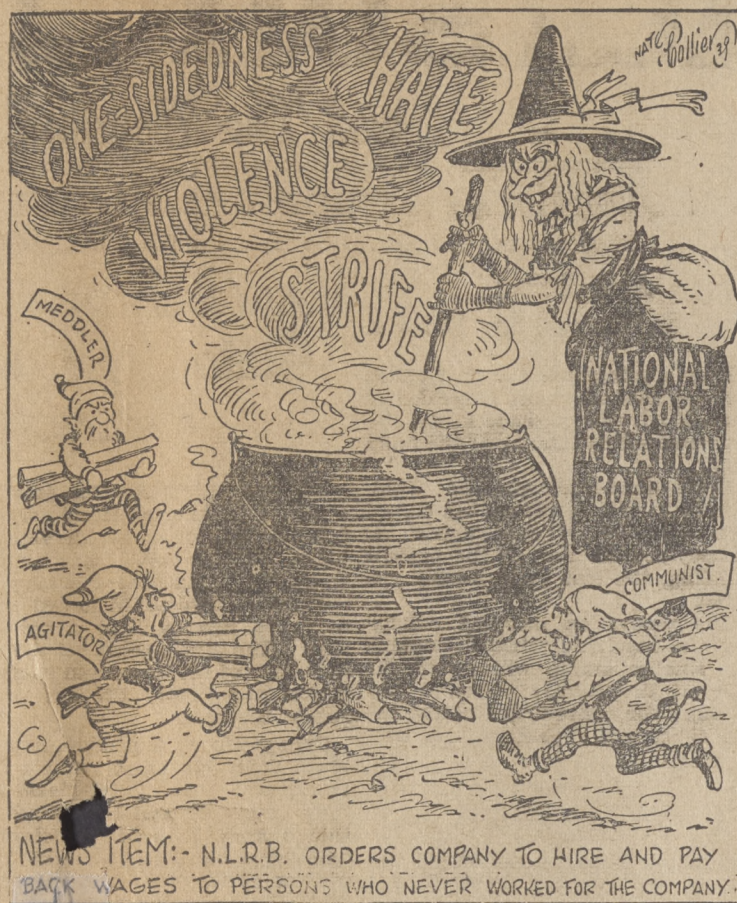

Addressing the recent convention of the American Bankers Association at Seattle, H. Donald Campbell, president of the Chase National Bank of New York, said: "May I reiterate my faith in the future of banking for both small and large institutions? There will be hardships and difficulties to overcome. There will be inflationary dangers ahead of us. The way will not be easy.
Yet I have confidence in the present generation of bankers to solve future problems. The fact is that the American banker, more than ever before, fully appreciates his responsibility to de-positors and to the general public."

"It seems to me that the functions performed by the American banking system are of such paramount importance to the economic welfare of the country that they have to be continued.
If there are no banks to do the work, someone else must do it. And that someone else is obviously the Government itself."

"Here is the alternative: either a banking system, with 14,000 outlets through which commercial credit is administered by the friends and neighbors of the borrower, or a centralized banking system operated according to rules and regulations prescribed in Washington and interpreted by employees of the central authority . . .
"Putting it very simply, the question is whether the American people want commercial credit administered by themselves, their friends and their neighbors, or whether they want it administered by political appointees."

Once the people give the politicians the power to do what they like with the public's money, they'll have given them enough rope to hang the country. Under our private banking system, every conceivable safeguard has been erected for protection of depositor and borrower. The ban-

Announce 1940
Lime Program

Application for lime under the 1940 Agricultural Conservation Program can be filed by Steuben county farmers in the week following November 15 as announced by Leon Dennis, chairman of the county committee.

For the convenience of local farmers, eight stations have been established which will be open daily from nine to five from November 15 thru November 22.

The lime is distributed at a cash cost of fifty cents a ton to those who join the Agricultural Conservation Program, the balance to be paid for out of the so-called soil building allowance of the cooperating farms.

Delivery can be taken now or in the spring, but because a large participation is expected, Mr. Dennis recommends that orders be placed now.

The sign-up stations include the Addison Town Hall for the farmers of Addison, Thurston, Rathbone, Tuscarora and Woodhull.
Wayland and Cohocton farmers will file orders at the Atlanta Firemen's Hall. Farmers of Greenwood, Hartsville, Jasper, Canisteo,

I often wonder what some preachers would think if they knew what the members of their congregation thought about them as expressed in words and a great deal which is left unsaid. Several incidents locally during the past few years have left some varied feeling in the hearts of parishioners. But as one of the men of the cloth told me, "don't forget, we are only human".

Apparently most local people are satisfied with the taxes they have to pay during the coming year for there were very few appeared at the grievance day meeting to express a desire to have their taxes raised or lowered. In fact when I think it over, in the years since I have been writing I don't ever remember anyone approaching the grievance board and asking that taxes be raised.

Noticed one of the firemen at the Van Zile fire Wednesday morning, on the roof fighting the fire with all his might and a lighted cigar in his mouth.

And speaking of that fire, there was muddy water flowing from the hose for quite some time after the water was turned on and firemen complained of mud running down their backs. Mud baths are supposed to be healthy.

It is a pleasure to ride over the Main Street crossing of the Erie now. The Highway Department co-operated with the railroad workers to give us as smooth a crossing as we have had in many moons. (Moons Received a letter recently in which it was pointed out that with Thanksgiving being kicked around, people may become confused relative to Christmas, but it will be at the same time as usual.

Kenneth McCaig, vice principal of Addison High School told the women of the Civic Society the setup of the town and village government last Friday afternoon and his explanation of the two fundamental forms of government was so good that we are printing a lengthy re-echo of his speech this week. In spite of all politics, the town and village are still big units of government, for there are more of them.
It is a good lesson in civics to read that speech.

And I congratulate the women of the Civic Society on their taking an interest in the science of government, for it is an old saying that "knowledge is power" and with the woman having the vote, the knowledge of this government, will give them more power for better politics.

Thanksgiving Prayer Lord, let our thanks be not for wealth.

For bounties past the common lot; Our praise for boons of life and health.

So well bestowed,—so oft forgot.
For cheery smiles, and helping hands.
For blessings of the humbler kind—A friend who knows and understands—

Lord, be our thanks to Thee inclined.
For curly heads, and chubby cheeks,
And homely joys, in secret shared, Each heart in grateful reverences speaks—

That one at least, may say, "He cares!"

There is still a folding gate at our house which some fond mother or father is in need of to hold the baby on the porch or in the yard.
It was left at our place the night of Hallowe'en by some pranksters. Come and get it, owper.

The explosion in the beer garden in Germany which nearly killed Hitler, the bad man of Europe, caused international comment. And the comment heard here was to the effect that it was too bad Hitler left the hall before the explosion.

LOOKING FORWARD

With the abdication of Congress, the New Deal's political strategy has become clear. Its leaders are gambling everything on the continuation of war in Europe. They look to the war to divert attention from their miserable failure in the domestic field. They look to that tragedy to stimulate the economic activity in this country that they failed to achieve with their white-rabbit schemes. In short, they visualize the war in Europe as a de luxe pump-priming project.

Suppose economic activity based on a foreign war is dangerous. Suppose there will be a sharp reaction from a war boom. What of it?
Let someone else worry about all that. The important thing is to go into the 1940 Presidential campaign with at least the semblance of prosperity. Such is the attitude of the New Dealers.

All of this has become apparent from President Roosevelt's activities and from the refusal of Congress to remain in session, after revising the Neutrality Act, to struggle with the many pressing domestic problems confronting the country. The New Deal leadership does not want even to hear about those problems. It has reached the point around official Washington that one cannot refer to the seriousness of domestic problems without being regarded as some kind of pariah.

It is a very nice plan for the New Dealers—if it works, though hard on the remainder of the country.
Yet there are some realists in Washington who have misgivings whether such a course of action will benefit politically even the New Dealers.
They fear that this New Deal balloon may burst in the face of the Roosevelt Administration before Election Day next year is reached, just as other New Deal balloons have burst.

These souls shudder to think what would happen should the war end this winter or next spring. The first result, undoubtedly, would be a severe jar to this country's economic system. The Roosevelt Administration would be left with all the domestic problems it had prior to last September, plus a great many more.
Then it would be impossible to justi-fy a huge national defense spending program and the country has surged on other types of pump-priming.

But if the European war goes on, the faith and plans which the New Dealers have for it as their salvation may prove to be a boomerang.
In the first place, this war, so far, has little in common with the World War that started in 1914. In that conflict millions of men were in the field—away from mines, farms and factories. Huge armies, on the march, were consuming tremendous amounts of war materials, which had to be replaced. This country became the supplier of such material.

Different Kind of War In the present war, so far, little material is being consumed.

Varied Programs Carried on By Local Home Bureau Units

The Home Bureau programs of local units have been full of a variety of meetings on all sorts of practical homemaking projects this fall. "Bringing the Wardrobe Up-to-Date" has been completed with nine units cooperating. As a result of these meetings under the direction of Mrs. Susie Landers, county clothing leader, a total of 338 garments have been remodeled and women who took this project as a part of their Home Bureau work report assisting 202 other women who are not members of the organization.

Another popular fall project taught by Mrs. J. D. Wilkie of Batavia has been that of designing and making rugs. Mrs. Wilkie attended two local meetings in each of 14 units during September and October. Leaders from the units now have charge of the remaining lessons in which the rugs are to be completed. A very important part of the work is the information on how different kinds of old materials may be utilized in making hooked, braided and crocheted rugs which will not only add to the attractiveness of the home but are practical because of their excellent wearing qualities. Old materials which otherwise might be discarded or destroyed can be utilized and information has been given on how to dye these materials to procure good color combinations which will fit in with other home furnishings. Mrs. Wilkie will return to the county late next spring to see the completed rugs and to choose those which will be shown as part of the Home Bureau Achievement Day exhibit scheduled for May 13.

Leaders from 11 units have attended the first in a series of meetings on "Housecleaning Methods". They discussed together with Miss Delia Wiesendanger, college specialist, some of the points to consider in organizing the job of cleaning in the home and made plans for a second meeting in which the leaders will actually practice some of the methods of cleaning their household furnishings. Leaders listed 27 questions which had come in from local unit members on various cleaning methods. The questions will be used as the basis for the second meeting which will be held early in the spring.

The Home Bureau is fortunate in having the cooperation of the Hornell district office of the State Department of Health, local health officers and county health nurses, in giving a course in "Pneumonia Control". Unit health leaders will attend training schools scheduled in different districts of the county, on December 5 at the library in Hornell, the second on December 6, at the high school in Painted Post. The meetings will be in charge of representatives of the state health department and information will be given on the importance of recognizing symptoms of pneumonia, of seeking proper medical care, and points in the nursing care of a pneumonia patient. Meetings on pneumonia control scheduled in the various communities during December, January and February, will be in charge of Home Bureau health leaders, local doctors and county nurses.

On December 14 and 15 Miss Lillian Shaben, foods and nutrition specialist from the College, will confer with unit leaders who are to conduct food demonstrations and nutrition discussions in their own units. The first meeting will be a demonstration of "Using More Milk in Making Attractive Desserts". It is expected that 19 organized units will cooperate in this project. Two more discussions and demonstrations will be scheduled in the spring.

The activities carried on by the Home Bureau units during the fall months are only a part of the program for the entire year. Representatives from the units cooperate with the county executive committee in compiling the program as a result of requests made throughout the year. These requests for help on special problems form the basis on which projects are planned.

District Attorney Pleased at Verdict of the Voters

Nov. 15 — District Attorney George A. King today issued the following statement:

I have been touched more deeply by the vote given me last Tuesday, Election Day, than by the majority I received three years ago when first seeking office of District Attorney. In the former campaign the contest had aroused interest and this was reflected in the number who favored me with their support.

This year, however, conditions over which I had no control removed me from participation in the contest for re-election and yet, unofficially, I received one of the largest majorities granted a Republican candidate. In view of the fact that the office of public prosecutor is one of the most difficult to direct and one in which many persons are affected adversely, I esteem the Election Day tribute to my public service the most impressive act of my professional life.

I receive it with a deep sense of humility and with a re-birth of my determination to serve the residents of Steuben County with all the fidelity at my command. When I begin my second term on January 1 it will be with an even more profound sense of my responsibility to the public and the high resolve to be worthy indeed of the great trust reposed in me.

Forest Fires

Rob Nation

In the United States the acreage burned last year by forest fires was more than 33,000,000, an area larger than New York State, with an estimated loss of $36,888,000. This shows the importance of the fire problem in the United States in which there occurred last year 232,229 forest fires. This problem takes on a still more serious aspect when it is remembered that almost all of the fires in the East are caused by man and the vast majority of those in the West, says the New York State College of Forestry at Syracuse University.

The West, however, due to the peculiarities of its climate, has a great many fires set by lightning. Some of the lightning storms are unaccompanied by rain. Practically all of the forest fires in the Northeast, with their attendant losses of trees, soil and buildings, could be prevented if people, particularly cigarette smokers, were more careful in the handling of fire in the woods.

New York State led the Northeast in the number of forest fires set in 1938. Massachusetts was a close second. These fires, which occurred on both protected and unprotected land, are shown by the U. S. Forest Service to have been 2,367 for New York and 2,280 for Massachusetts. New York, however, had less acreage burned than Massachusetts and less damage than Rhode Island and Massachusetts. Vermont had only 258 fires.

In the middle Atlantic states, Pennsylvania led the procession with 3,459 fires and an estimated damage of $124,000. Florida had 34,589 fires with the damage placed at $6,646,000. Alabama had 36,000 fires with $2,000,000 damage; Mississippi lost $7,000,000 in 32,000 fires.

Many people have come to believe that more fires and greater damage are to be found in the West, particularly in the Pacific coast states, but California, which had the highest number on the coast, recorded only 3,715 fires, with a total loss of $1,760,000.

Masonic Booster Night

Held Monday Evening

P. D. D. Gerald H. Hedges of Corning gave a few comments on Restoration Lodge 777 followed by Curtis H. Kaufelt also of Corning who spoke regarding delinquent members.

N. Y. Cows Come Home

From Fair Triumph—

Lindley Cow in Group

New York purebred dairy cows—including two Jerseys, a Guernsey, an Ayrshire, and a Holstein—from Wyoming, Allegheny, Livingston, Steuben and Erie counties are coming back to their homes after triumphant careers as star performers in The Borden Company Dairy World of Tomorrow at the New York World's Fair.

The returning heroines include Strathbar Vanda, Ayrshire, owned by H. B. Toby and Sons of Lindley; Wilcox Royal Olive, Jersey, owned by Les Chamberlain of Wyoming; Allegheny Creamy Estelle, Jersey, owned by The Allegheny County Farm of Angell; Valley Improver Charity, Guernsey, owned by J. Earl Scott of Dansville; and Princess Sylvins Canary, Holstein, owned by Harry Yates of Orchard Park.

Vere S. Culver, nationally famous livestock judge, who has had charge of the Dairy World of Tomorrow cows stated: "In my 30 years' experience with cows this purebred world's fair herd of 150 cows is the best producing herd I've ever handled."

Their production performance, averages totals of better than 300 pounds of butterfat per cow in six months, and averages of better than 40 pounds of milk per day per cow, per breed, are a truly remarkable tribute to the value of selection and demonstrate the value of purebreds in profitable dairy production. The average common dairy cow produces less than 200 pounds of butterfat in 12 months."

Probably no other cows in history—with the possible exception of Mrs. O'Leary's Chicago cow—have received the widespread attention accorded the 150 purebreds housed, cared for, fed and milked under Borden's famous Walker-Gordon Rotolactor system on the Fair grounds from April through October.

Thirty cows, and representative bulls and calves of each of the five breeds—Ayrshire, Brown Swiss, Guernsey, Holstein-Friesian and Jersey—have been feted and featured, paraded and publicized before millions who visited the Fair and additional millions who read about the Fair.

This purebred demonstration herd was an outstanding hit among the many exhibits at the World's Fair and their appearance was made possible through cooperation of the five purebred associations of the United States and Canada, the purebred owners who provided the fine animals, and The Borden Company which provided barns, feed and care for the herd, to bring home to the public in a dramatic and spectacular fashion the merits of dairy products and the contributions of purebreds to the improvement of dairy cattle in the western hemisphere.

In many communities the returning purebreds are being honored at homecoming ceremonies sponsored by local newspapers and chambers of commerce or businessmen's clubs.

Penn Yan—John Ballantine Cramer, former postmaster here observed his 81st birthday last week.

Rock Stream—A young man's truck loaded with tile went off the highway near here. He stepped to a nearby home to use the telephone and there discovered a classmate from a school in Pennsylvania he had not seen in several years, since graduation.

Attorney Varn Warns Labor of Evil Forces

Attorney Hugh Varn of this village warned Elkland Tannery employees of subversive influences in American labor and spoke of the heritage American workers have. This address was given at the Armistice Day observance held by the Elkland Tannery Employees Club Saturday night.

Attorney Varn said in part: "We are here to commemorate a great occasion in our National existence and to do honor to those who generously gave up their youth and even of life itself in defense of a great principle. Twenty-one years ago today the order 'cease firing' echoed along our victorious battle front and the tension of war gave way to the exuberance of victory."

"War passed into the background and dire economic results followed slowly in its wake. More than ten years elapsed before the effects wrought by war upon our economic system became fully evident. For the past ten years we have been paying the penalty of war that ended twenty years ago."

"The trickery of European diplomacy must never again deceive us by high sounding slogans. We are beyond the range of their thundering guns and the terror of their aircraft. We now fully realize that the international peace is beyond the pale of man's efforts. The world can never be made safe for Democracy. Our duty lies here. America is safe for Democracy and as long as we cling to our traditional ideals this grand American heritage can be preserved without the massing of American bayonets on foreign soil. The dangers we fully realize, lie within and not without."

"The inception and history of American Democracy does not reek with bloodshed. It is the government of freedom and peaceable patriotism. Our forefathers sought and settled these shores, seeking a free freedom of thought and action. Theirs was a great idealism. They were God-fearing people who sought the sanctity of Christian religion in its many forms. But they also desired freedom for honest labor. They had fled the homeland to escape the slavery, serfdom and bondage of Europe. They were workmen who demanded the rewards of toil and asked that they be considered worthy of their hire. Inspired by this great idealism, they founded a Nation which they hoped to perpetuate as a haven of refuge, not only for themselves and their posterity but for all liberty-loving souls which foreign oppression in the future would drive to our shores."

"The history of the growth and progress of labor on this continent is a history of American Democracy. Upon this great principle has been founded the industrial strength of our Nation. This strength has proved to be a great shroud of protection which is feared as much by foreign nations as would be a standing army of equal size. Commerce begs for our products and the very life of Nations depends upon our industry."

"War without can never destroy us but the forces of evil try to filter in amongst us. They do not come openly with thundering artillery across our borders. Theirs is a stealthy invasion that plants the foe within our ramparts before we realize the dangers. We cannot resist their attack with death dealing instruments of war. But we must be constantly on guard that they do not lead us to destruction."

"No system can be perfect, nor do we expect it to be. Human greed and selfishness plays on both sides. There are times when the employer is wrong and likewise there are times when labor is wrong."

"We must beware of false prophets who want us to sell our American birthrights for a mess of pottage. American labor has progressed and flourished under its own leadership. The work-day has been shortened and the pay increased. I have the highest respect and so have we all for those honest leaders of labor. They assure that the workman is entitled to a living wage but at the same time they remind us that industry must have a reasonable profit. These honest leaders are not unscrupulous rabble rousers who live on the fruits of disorder and industrial rebellion. They serve with us under the flag of truth and honesty and not under the reeking red rag of anarchy."

This constitutes the main organization of our local government, and before closing I should like to throw out two problems for the consideration of a club such as this. During the month of October last year we received for relief, and last year $250,000 in bounty toward a million and a quarter dollars for the same purpose. Of course much of this money is contributed by the State and nation, but I believe the money is not the serious aspect. The relief officers are conscientious, tax-paying people and do everything in their power to keep this figure down. I do believe the serious side of the question is mental attitude built up among so many of our people. I am sure that the people to which I refer but it is not wholesome one and I propose this problem to a club interested in government. The other suggestion is not really a problem, but something rather to hold before the people. I speak of the Constitution of the United States. When we are fearful of strange governments we should familiarize ourselves with our Constitution almost to the point of memorizing it, for the very reason of our property. When the American people really understand what they are in the Constitution there need no fear of foreign types gaining foothold in our Country.

Mastitis Control

One of the first things to do to control mastitis is to find the infected cows. These animals can be grouped together and milked last to check the spread to other cows. This makes a good start in the control of mastitis. Clean milking methods, proper stable sanitation and the avoidance of udder injuries will do the rest in helping to reduce mastitis troubles.

By changing the point of view in regard to these health examinations, from one of distrust to one of cooperation, the work of the veterinarian is made more pleasant and the farmer himself will greatly benefit from knowing more about the health of his animals. Such a

LET'S TALK TURKEY

— how to make Fresh Hot Dishes from cold left-over turkey

By Dorothy Greig

IT is the third and fourth days in the progress of a roast turkey that begin to be a bit of a problem. The noble bird has been reduced pretty much to scraps.

Turkey and Noodle Scallop is one way to make delicious use of cold left-over turkey.

There's lots of meat still left, but not enough to make a real show. Besides, by that time the family needs a little variation. Here are two ways to do it:

First, we can make a most delicious Turkey and Noodle Scallop. This Scallop brings that cold turkey to the table as a fresh hot dish, savory, satisfying and full of goodness.

Turkey and Noodle Scallop

- 1 package (6 ounces) noodles
- 1 can condensed cream of mushroom soup
- 1 cup milk
- 4 ounces velveeta cheese
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- pinch pepper
- 4 tablespoons chopped green pepper, cooked
- 2 tablespoons chopped pimiento
- 2 cups cooked turkey (diced)
- 4 tablespoons buttered corn flakes (rolled)

Cook the noodles in boiling salted water until tender, about nine minutes. Put the cream of mushroom soup in a saucepan and stir well. Then add the milk and heat, but do not boil. Stir the cheese (sliced) into the mushroom sauce and heat until the cheese melts. Remove from fire and add the seasonings, chopped green pepper, (which has been cooked 8-10 minutes in boiling water) chopped pimiento and diced turkey. Turn the mixture into a buttered casserole and sprinkle with rolled buttered corn flakes. Bake in a moderate (350°F.) oven for about 20 minutes. Serves 8.

Another thing we can do is make individual Turkey and Mushroom Pies—or one big pie, if you wish. But it's fun to make up individual ones in these shallow brown pottery bowls. Fresh from the oven, bubbling gently under tender biscuit crust, they tempt any appetite.

Individual Turkey and Mushroom Pie

- 1 cup cooked turkey (cut in 1/2 in. squares)
- 1 can condensed cream of mushroom soup
- 1/2 cup milk
- 1/2 cup green peas, cooked
- 12 cubes of potato (cut 1/2 in. squares)
- 4 small whole onions, cooked

Mix the cream of mushroom soup until creamy. Then add the milk, turkey, and green peas.

Place 3 cubes of cooked potato and 1 cooked onion in individual casserole or pie dish. Put turkey and mushroom mixture over the vegetables. Then cover with biscuit crust. Makes four pies.

Biscuit Crust for Pie

- 1 cup flour, sifted
- 1/2 teaspoon baking powder
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 2 tablespoons butter
- 1/2 cup milk (approximately)

Sift flour with baking powder and salt. Add butter and cut into flour until mixture is fine like cornmeal. Add milk and mix until a medium soft dough is formed. Knead lightly on a floured board then roll about 1/4 inch thickness. Cut in shapes the same size as the individual pie dish. Place biscuit cover over turkey pie mixture and press down on edge of dish. Cut perforations in top crust so that steam may escape. Bake in a hot (425°F.) oven for 15-20 minutes.

Alfred Ceramics Dept. Announces Research Work

Holmes, dean of the New York State Ceramic College at Alfred University, presented, at a recent meeting of the State Ceramic Association, a list of ten research problems which will be studied this year at the Experiment Station at Alfred. Dr. Holmes is secretary of the Association.

Among papers presented at the meeting was one by Dr. M. C. Harrison, a member of the faculty of the Ceramic College. Dr. Harrison pointed out that "the spectroscopy and spectrograph have been widely used in chemical and metal industries in recent years, but few have realized the potent value of such methods to the analysis of ceramic materials. This may be due to the special technique necessary, the unfamiliar type of apparatus and the initial cost. Spectrographic analyses distinguish themselves by directness, simplicity and sensitiveness.

"A whiteware plant manufacturing bathtubs was troubled with green spots in the glaze which could not be traced to raw materials. A spectrographic analysis of the spots showed the presence of copper and zinc as main constituents and traces of lead, tin, and antimony. This indicated contamination by brass. The brass fitting room was moved and the trouble was cured. A brick plant found peculiar growths appearing on some of their brick. A spectrographic analysis showed the growths to be zinc oxide. The source of the zinc was found to be in the packing of the milled tires."

A paper by Harvey Conner, 33, working at the Experiment Station under the New York State Brick Manufacturing Scholarship dealt with the problem of improving Hudson River soft mud brick by the addition of soda ash. "Soda Ash mixed with lime," Mr. Conner discovered, "make a brick with a density near that obtained with soda ash alone. Because of the increased density with the soda ash, the drying and firing shrinkage are also reduced. Probably the most noticeable effect of the soda ash is the improvement in color.

Woodland Owners Have Cheap Fuel

If war in Europe continues for any length of time the person who owns a woodlot will probably have an economic advantage over the person who does not own one, says Floyd E. Carlson of the New York State College of Forestry at Syracuse University, in Syracuse, N. Y. The war has already caused an increase in the cost of fuel, and it may reach still higher prices.

Professor Carlson says that until recent years more wood has been used for fuel in the United States than was used in any other form or for any other purpose. However, fuelwood has ranked second to lumber for about ten years, due chiefly to the development of more efficient devices for the use of other fuels.

He states that another reason for the decrease in the consumption of fuelwood is due to the fact that no outstanding improvement has been made in the efficiency of wood-burning stoves and furnaces, but today both the Federal government and private industries are more alert than ever before to the need of better fuel devices and it is not improbable that in the next year or two, particularly if the war continues, new and more economical American-made wood-burning stoves and furnaces will be on the market.

Professor Carlson emphasizes the point that if prices do advance and the owner of a woodlot fails to harvest the fire wood on his woodlot for his own use, or for the market, he will pay a double penalty because he is going to lose the heating advantages of the wood, or the profits from it, and will run into increased expense for other fuel.

Food Sales Here Return $496,970 In Hidden Taxes

Families in Steuben County pay an estimated $496,970 in hidden taxes annually through their purchases of food, a National Consumers Tax Commission survey showed today.

"Nearly eight per cent of the total food bill represents shifted taxes buried in the price of every purchase," the report stated. "These unseen levies, for example, take 11 per cent of butter costs, 6 1/2 per cent of bread costs, 10 1/2 per cent of sliced bacon and 14 1/2 per cent of the cost of coffee."

The report was made public thru Mrs. Charles J. Reeder, of Carthage, national committee member, who leads NCTC study groups in New York in the educational crusade against "unnecessary consumer-penalizing taxes." The report added: "Chief offenders, and those that fall most heavily on lower income families, are hidden taxes. These are levied originally against the producer, manufacturer, shipper and distributor. Unable to absorb the load, each must pass on a share of its taxes and the consumer ultimately pays them, usually without knowing it."

The commission, in whose non-partisan crusade groups in approximately 5,100 communities have launched tax study programs, said the hidden tax figure does not include the many other hidden and direct taxes families here have to pay.

The food tax estimate was computed from NCTC averages based on last available U. S. Bureau of the census figures which placed 1935 food sales in the county at $6,115,000. Government estimates of total sales in the country last year approximate the total in the 1935 study, the NCTC said.
